The Importance of physical activity

Kids need at least 60 minutes of activity every day, but it doesn't have to happen all at once! Think about ways you can squeeze quick activity sessions into different parts of your child's day.

Everyone benefits from regular exercise. Here are some ways your child can benefit:

- Having stronger muscles and bones.

- Having a lower chance of getting Type II diabetes.

- Having lower blood pressure and blood cholesterol levels.

- A better outlook on life.

Different age groups require different amounts and types of physical activity each day. Check out what type of physical activity your child needs: <https://www.cdc.gov/physical-activity-basics/guidelines/children.html>

How can families support healthy active living for their children?

Set limits for your children's screen time.

Play organized sports.

If possible, consider walking them to school instead of driving.

Make sure activities are safe by encouraging protective equipment use- Helmets when riding bikes, helmets and knee/elbow pads when riding scooters, skateboards and rollerblades.

Be a good role model.

Camp Read-A-Lot

April 6th-12th is National Library Week

Come ready to camp out with a good book. Blend in with nature and wear camo on your library day!

Yearbooks

It is yearbook ordering season!!! This week a yearbook order form should have come home! If you have already ordered a yearbook, it should have been highlighted and noted on the form.
